VOL. VIII. NO. 22 FRESNO, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1894 PRICE—5 CENTS

THE CAUCUS DECIDES

To Accede to the Request of the House

FOR ANOTHER CONFERENCE

Senate Conferees Will Return to the Meeting Untrammeled by Specific Instructions.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The senate will accede to the request of the house for another conference on the tariff bill, and its conferees will return to the meeting with those of the house untrammeled by any specific instructions whatever. This was the conclusion of the Democratic senatorial caucus, which adjourned sine die a few minutes after 5 o'clock today, after two days' waiting. While the caucus did not commit itself to any definite line of policy, in so many words, the conferees feel with their Democratic colleagues that they understand what the majority of them desire, and they believe this to be that they shall stand substantially for the senate bill.

This is not the individual preference of many of the Democratic senators, but it represents the opinion of most of them as expressed in caucus as to the only practical course open to Democrats who think the present congress must pass a tariff bill of some kind, whether it be what they prefer or not. In other words, the result of the caucus which has just closed is that it is impracticable to pass any tariff bill through the senate which does not meet the demands of the so-called conservative senators and Lousiana senators. It became evident soon after the caucus convened today that the resolution of Senator Jarvis to send the bill back to conference without instructions was the only course open to the caucus.

Senator Gorman devoted himself to a verbal statement on the parliamentary status of the bill. A majority of those who participated in the caucus came out when it adjourned with their faces wreathed in smiles, and most of them indicated by their actions that they believed that they had inaugurated a line of policy which would secure the passage of the tariff bill. Some of them who would say nothing as to the proceedings announced themselves as confident of the ultimate success of the bill.

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS.

Protective Tariff Indorsed — The Wilson Bill Denounced.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 25.—The Republican State convention is in session here. The question of nominating a United States senator was laid on the table. The platform states that Republicans believe the restoration of the Republican party to power in the government of the country would promote the general welfare of the people and renew a condition of general prosperity. A protective tariff was indorsed and the Wilson bill denounced. The Democratic party is charged with being solely responsible for the unusual and unnatural conditions now existing between capital and labor which have led to lawlessness and bloodshed, interruption of business and brought misfortune to all. This state of affairs is the result of false economic theories, the vacillating policy and hopeless incompetency of the Democratic party, and to remove the evils thus created it is necessary that the Republicans should be restored to power. The platform favors bimetallism, and believes in the use of gold and silver as money metals upon a parity of values, with complete incontrovertibility under such legislation as shall make the purchasing and debt paying power of any dollar coined or issued by the United States absolutely equivalent to that of any other dollar so coined or issued. The payment of liberal pensions to soldiers and sailors is favored, and the present administration's policy toward Hawaii condemned.

THE TARSNEY AFFAIR.

Arrests Made for Tarring and Feathering the General.

COLORADO CITY, Col., July 25.—Detectives from Denver today arrested John Mullins, Herman Rudballe and C. H. McKinney of Colorado Springs for complicity in tarring and feathering Adjutant General Tarsney. They were held in bonds of $5000. Before the bonds could be furnished Sheriff Bowers of Colorado Springs demanded the custody of the prisoners, and took them to the county jail. Sheriff Bowers asked by what right the Denver detectives had made arrests in El Paso county, and was informed that they had been specially authorized by Governor Waite to act in the Tarsney matter. Legal complications may grow out of the matter.

Towns Burned by Forest Fires.

NELSON, B. C., July 25.—The forest fires which have been raging in the Slocan mining country the past two weeks were fanned into a conflagration by the heavy gales yesterday and swept eastward. The towns of Three Forks and Watson were completely destroyed, not a building being left. So far as known no lives were lost, but many persons had narrow escapes. The people of Watson saved themselves by taking refuge in a tunnel.

The Cost of the Strike.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 25.—In an interview this afternoon Governor Markham expressed the belief and hope that the great railroad strike in this state would end peacefully in a few days, and that the state troops would return to their various homes. The Governor estimates the cost of the strike to the state at from $10,000 to $15,000 a day, and says that the proper way to liquidate this debt is by legislative appropriation.

To Continue the Strike.

OAKLAND, July 25.—The local American Railway Union lodge held a meeting here this afternoon, at which between 500 and 600 members were present. By an almost unanimous vote it was decided to continue the strike, at least until the Southern Pacific managers should signify a willingness to take the men back in a body.

Captain Erskine Carson Dead.

HILLSBORO, O., July 25.—Captain Erskine Carson died here today. His death was due to a bullet-wound received in the battle of Bull Run. Captain Carson was author of the famous dispatch to Governor Foraker, asking the latter not to surrender any rebel flag while he was governor.

WISCONSIN REPUBLICANS

Opposed to a Debased or Depreciated Currency.

MILWAUKEE, July 25.—The Republican state convention adopted a platform ascribing the recent disturbances to the policy of the Democratic administration. The platform recognizes the right of laborers to organize, using all honorable measures for the purpose of dignifying their condition and placing themselves upon an equal position with capital. The money plank says: "We are unalterably opposed to any scheme that will give to this country a debased or depreciated currency. We favor the use of silver as currency to the extent only that it can be circulated on a parity with gold."

Shot His Father and Sister.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 25.—John Collins, a market gardener, last night thought he heard thieves in the garden, and started to investigate. He was followed by his daughter, Maggie. Mrs. Collins heard the two, and supposed they were thieves, and aroused her son William, who got a gun and shot both father and daughter. The former is dead and the latter is dying.

PATRIOTIC JAPS

DECIDE TO RAISE $10,000 FOR THEIR GOVERNMENT.

Also Prepared to Form a Brigade of 4000 Men Armed With American Rifles.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—A meeting of a committee representing Japanese residents was held at the Japan consulate tonight and it was decided to make immediate efforts to raise $10,000 to assist the Japanese government in carrying on the war with China. Further than that the San Francisco Japanese are prepared to form a brigade of 4000 men and arm themselves with American rifles and go to Japan at their own expense if their services should be needed in the Corean conflict. All members of the Japanese colony will be assessed to raise funds if the war goes on.

Debs Gives Bail.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Debs, Howard, Keliher and Rogers, after a lengthy conference with their attorneys, decided this afternoon to give bail. William Skakell and William Fitzgerald appeared as bondsmen and the four men were released.

The Markets.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Wheat—Very dull; December, $1.09¼.

Barley—Very dull; new, seller, 94c.

Corn, $1.45.

Bran, $16 a ton.

A Negro Hanged.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 25.—Henry Bennett, colored, was hanged here today for the murder of his wife in 1893 for deserting him. He died game.

CARD FROM M. J. LINDROSE.

Addressed to the Fresno County Farmers' Alliance.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—Knowing that your paper circulates widely among the members of the Farmers' Alliance, and this letter being more especially addressed to them, I trust you will give place to the following:

Being chairman of the committee for the good of the order of Fresno county Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union I intended to be present at the meeting of the county alliance held at Fowler last Saturday and, as at previous meetings, take an active part in the proceedings, but upon the very morning when the alliance met I was prevented by unforeseen circumstances from being present.

But as there are four other active, earnest and intelligent members upon the committee I trust that they were present to make reports, and that none will consider my absence as one of neglect and indifference, for it would have been a pleasure to me to have been in attendance and to have laid some important and original matters before the alliance, and I am satisfied that those matters and questions would not only have been for the good of the order, but would also have at the same time been of interest and a benefit to the people of this state and nation. I trust, however, in due time to lay these things not only before the Farmers' Alliance but also before the whole people.

M. J. LINDROSE,

Chairman Committee for the Good of the Order, Fresno County Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union.

Easton, July 23, 1894.

A QUESTION OF OWNERSHIP

Two Parties Lay Claim to the Same Property.

Several months ago a pawnshop in Chinatown was robbed, and the officers, in the course of their search for the stolen property, found a quantity of silver knives and forks in the possession of Tom Ow.

The property was not identified as that taken from the pawn shop, but the matter looked very suspicious, and the Chinaman was taken to jail on a charge of vagrancy to await developments.

The property was identified by Dr. I. S. Eshleman as some stolen from his house, and he entered a charge of burglary against Tom Ow.

When the case came to trial, however, Tom Ow was dismissed on account of lack of evidence.

Dr. Eshleman now wants the county clerk to turn over the property to him, and Tom Ow also lays claim to it. The property consisted of one dozen silver-plated knives and forks, two table cloths and a half-dozen napkins.

Tom says he ran a restaurant at one time, and had these things left on his hands.

The county clerk will not deliver the goods without an order from the court, which shall relieve him of responsibility in the matter.

Off for Millerton.

A party of ten persons left Fresno last evening for Millerton, on the San Joaquin river, where they will remain a week or more enjoying the excellent fishing which always abounds there. Their camp will be pitched about half a mile above the town of Millerton. Those who grow tired of fishing will put in their time prospecting for gold. There are many old diggings in that locality. The party is composed of Judge Gillum Batey, John Ashman, Mrs James McCardle, and Misses Sue and Kate Daly, Sarah, May and Laura McCardle, and Bessie Ashman.

THREE PEOPLE KILLED

By Ex-policeman Craig of Los Angeles.

WIFE AND RELATIVES SHOT

He Then Tries to Commit Suicide by Shooting Himself in the Head.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 25.—Three people were killed and one fatally wounded by John Craig, an ex-police officer, tonight. This evening Craig hired a horse and buggy and drove to the house of his divorced wife near Tropico. He had armed himself with two revolvers and had been drinking heavily during the afternoon. When he arrived at his wife's house he deliberately drew a revolver and shot her dead. Her brother, George Hunter, who was some distance away when the shooting occurred, rushed to his sister's assistance. Craig shot him, inflicting a fatal wound.

He then drove rapidly back to Los Angeles. Arriving at the house of his father-in-law, William Hunter, he tied the horse, and without ceremony went into the house and shot and instantly killed his father and mother-in-law. He then tried to commit suicide by shooting himself in the head, but only inflicted a slight flesh wound. Two neighbors then disarmed Craig.

Mrs. Craig secured a divorce two months ago on the grounds of cruelty. Craig has a very quarrelsome disposition. He claims his wife and her family frequently threatened his life, and that the shooting tonight anticipated the fulfillment of their threats. As a police officer Craig had the reputation of being quarrelsome and aggressive. He distinguished himself while an officer by participating in numerous brawls. Craig has three children, the oldest 5 years.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

Troops Landed Without Opposition in Corea.

SHANGHAI, July 25.—It is reported that 12,000 Chinese troops, which left Taku, July 20th, for Corea, conveyed by eight gunboats, have landed in Corea. The gunboats had instructions to fire upon the Japanese if the latter obstructed the landing with arms. Other troops which left Foo Chow for the Loo Choo islands are also said to have reached their destination safely. If the report of the landing of Chinese troops unopposed is correct, the prospects of a peaceful settlement of disputes between China and Japan are improved. The Chinese fleet of transports and gunboats could scarcely have escaped the vigilance of the Japanese war vessels if the latter were preparing to oppose the landing of Chinese forces.

The Trial of the Strikers.

WOODLAND, July 25.—Having made out what they consider a strong case against the prisoners Worden and Hatch, the men charged with other members of the strikers' mediation committee, J. R. Hughes, president of the Sacramento Railway Union, was put on the stand and questioned closely as to the objects and rules of the union. Hughes was on the stand nearly all of the morning, but there was nothing in his testimony tending to implicate his accused brothers of the American Railway Union or to bear out the charges of conspiracy.

Huntington's Son-in-Law.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The World's Saratoga special says: Prince Hatzfeldt, C. P. Huntington's son-in-law, has for some time played roulette for high stakes at the Saratoga club. Last night he played $1000 on every roll of the ball. He won $11,000 and then lost all but $3,000. He returned late and lost the balance and $1,000 additional. The proprietor enforced the $10,000 limit, and the prince became enraged and upset the table and smashed the furniture.

Soldiers Return.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—About 450 men of the N.G.C., who have been in Sacramento twenty-two days in connection with the strike, returned tonight and were met at the ferry by a large crowd.

A Runaway Accident.

SAN JOSE, July 25.—This afternoon, while out driving the horses driven by T. C. Lowe of Merced, became unmanageable and ran away, throwing him from the buggy. He received injuries which may cause his death.

Kings River Canyon.

Howard Ogle and George Lambert, who started out last week to spend a week in Kings River canyon, were forced to return yesterday, having gone only twenty miles above Centerville. When they reached that point they were told that the sheep had eaten all the grass for thirty miles or more up the canyon, so that there was no subsistence for their horses. It was impossible to obtain a supply and the pair reluctantly abandoned the expedition.

CAPITAL AND INDUSTRY.

They Make a Successful Combination in Fruit Culture.

From the Tulare Register.

About four years ago Prof. L. B. Wilson of San Jose came to Tulare and purchased eighty acres of land with the intent of planting a prune and peach orchard. He selected a suitable tract, purchased the trees, and then, being of the opinion that a forty-acre orchard would prove as big a venture as he cared to handle, contracted with A. Jacobson to plant the trees for the entire eighty acres and to tend them until the trees came into bearing, when he was, according to agreement, to deed to Mr. Jacobson one-half the tract.

The work was done and well done. No weed was permitted to grow and the half that was to be the property of Professor Wilson received as good attention as the half which was to belong to the cultivator and a while ago the deed was passed and A. Jacobson is now the fortunate possessor of a forty-acre orchard he has earned, and the price paid for that forty acres has given Professor Wilson another nice forty-acre orchard in bearing. It was a good trade all around, and Professor Wilson is here now to harvest and cure his first considerable crop which, we are told, is a good one.

OUR WARRIORS BOLD.

THEY RETURN AFTER A BLOODLESS CAMPAIGN.

Company F Carries Off the Honors For Facial Decorations—A Prowler Fired Upon.

After a bloodless campaign, extending over a period of two weeks, the local militiamen have laid aside their uniforms, and are now once more private citizens.

A special train, carrying Companies G and F of Fresno, D of Modesto and H of Merced, arrived in Fresno a few minutes after 1 o'clock yesterday. The entire battalion disembarked, and the men marched into the railroad eating house, where ample preparations had been made by Major Simpson to satisfy their appetites.

The command had a very warlike appearance, and looked as if they were out for business. But Company F of Fresno certainly carried off the honors. The zephyrs of the mountains about Tehachapi seemed to have a peculiar faculty of developing whiskers. The cadences that floated out through these whiskers were welcome company to the happy possessor when out on a lone beat in the night. Taken in all, however, company F presented the most formidable appearance. In the whisker contest all honors were humbly turned over to Captain Hart, who had succeeded in sprouting a most luxuriant growth. Lieutenants Wolcott and Collins and Sergeant James ran him a close race, however.

When they had satisfied their appetites, the local companies fell in again on the platform where they had stacked their arms. The Merced and Modesto companies lined up opposite them and gave them three ringing cheers, which were answered by both companies. Companies D and H then boarded the train and continued their journey. Companies G and F were marched down Mariposa street to the armory, carrying knapsacks, haversacks and canteens, and headed by Sergeant St. Clair, bearing the memorable flag mounted on a fir bough, with the green twigs on the top.

That the boys were glad to get home was signified by the rousing cheers and houts set up when the order to break ranks was given at the armory.

The officers speak in high terms of the way the men conducted themselves in camp. Strict military discipline was rigidly enforced, which was something the boys had not been accustomed to, but they bore it with a fortitude that bespeaks mettle. Only three breaches of military discipline were committed, and they were of minor importance, and no serious penalties were enforced.

During their two weeks campaign, the commands under Colonel Wright guarded 12,000 miles of railroad, counting the distance run on all the guarded trains and over twenty miles of tunnels and trestle work. Every day at guard mount 110 men were mounted. Forty of these were placed in charge of the Kern river bridge about one mile south of Bakersfield; the remainder guarded the camp and the roundhouse.

A good story is told on Private May of company F. He was guarding one of the many tunnels in the district. The tunnel was dark, and one could see but a short distance. He paced to and fro with regularity, and kept it up till late in the night, when suddenly he saw what appeared to be two men sneaking about at the mouth of the tunnel. It was but a moment till he was flat on the ground with his gun cocked, awaiting a favorable opportunity to put in a telling shot. But it never came. He anxiously lay there for seven long hours, till daylight came and revealed to him that it was but the shadow of a swaying tree that was the object of his intended attack.

The only occasion during the entire campaign where a sentry was compelled to shoot occurred on the Kern river bridge Monday night. A man was seen prowling around the bridge, and when called on to halt and asked what business he had there, he made no reply, but turned and made a plunge into the brush on the river bank. In the meantime the sentinels began firing and six or seven shots were sent after him. The man made his escape, but the entire guard was called out and kept a sharp outlook until morning. In the night one of the sentinels heard a noise and mercilessly fired upon a stump standing near. It developed that a pretty skunk, on a nocturnal lark, made the noise.

A volunteer company of sixty men was left at Bakersfield in command of Captain Byrnes of Visalia, Lieutenant Walker of Visalia, and Lieutenant Wolcott of Fresno. Wolcott came up with the boys, but returned again on the evening train.

Captain Whitmore and Lieutenant Medley of Modesto, the latter the regimental ordinance officer, stopped over in Fresno and took the early morning train home.

CLEVELAND AND THE SENATE.

The violent and personal controversy now going on between President Cleveland and a number of prominent Democratic senators reflects credit upon no one, but the President is unquestionably placed in the more unfavorable light before the bar of public opinion, at which all these great men must answer for their official conduct. In the first place, Cleveland is again playing the role of the dictator and usurping powers which do not belong to the executive branch of the government. That he has frequently done this does not lessen the offense. He is only strengthening a revolutionary and dangerous precedent of his own creation, and one which should not only be opposed by congress but by the people who must accept the ultimate consequences of such violation of the constitutional theory of the government.

The reply which the senators make to the sweeping denunciation of their course by the President, discloses abundant ground for the bitterness of the anger which they have displayed. Extracts from certain speeches which have not been published in the local press will afford the reader the most satisfactory idea of the situation. Senator Gorman of Maryland made the principal speech in opposition to the course of the President The concluding utterances of that address and the dramatic incidents following it are reported as follows by the Associated Press:

He paid a high tribute to Senators Vest, Jones, Voorhees and Harris—"those brave men whose laborious work had accomplished the feat of adjusting these differences and had made the passage of the bill possible." Then in a dramatic tone he delivered his defiance. The infamous calumnies heaped upon the head of the senate forced from his lips, he said, a plain, unvarnished statement. He would make it, he said, with malice toward none, but he would look his colleagues and the American people in the eye and tell the truth.

In patriotism the Democratic senate had gone to work to save the country and continue the party in power, when suddenly in the midst of the struggle came the President's letter. "It was the most uncalled for, most extraordinary, most unwise communication," said Gorman in bitter tones, "that ever came from a President of the United States. It placed this body in a position where its members must see to it that the dignity and honor of this chamber be preserved. It places me in a position where I must tell this story as it occurred."

Gorman then proceeded to detail the manner in which to meet the objections and secure the support of certain disaffected Democrats a change had been agreed upon. He stated emphatically that during this work Vest and Jones held frequent conferences with Secretary Carlisle, and often with Cleveland himself. No material sacrifices of principle were made. The result was, as he had declared on a previous occasion, a Democratic measure which, in his opinion, leaned toward radical tariff reform sentiment, and which he thought would receive the support of the Democratic house, senate and President.

He charged directly that every one of the senate amendments had been seen by Secretary Carlisle before they were agreed upon He drew from his desk and had read an interview with Secretary Carlisle on April 30th, in which the Secretary gave the same bill his sweeping indorsement.

After the reading of the Carlisle interview Gorman led up to one of the most remarkable episodes of the day, the summoning of Vest, Jones and Harris as witnesses to his statement that the President approved the senate compromise by making the following remarks:

"Such was the declaration of the Secretary of the Treasury. That statement from him had probably a wonderful effect. It softened the hard places with which we met when we came to confer and to act. It was accepted. It did much to enable me to bring together forty-three senators in this body. I repeat that but for it I do not believe we should have succeeded in getting together. But it did not stop here. It was not alone with the Secretary of the Treasury, who necessarily speaks for the President in matters concerning his department. The President was not ignorant of what we propose to do. Nothing was concealed from him. The papers announced on the day following the interview with Mr. Carlisle that the President himself concurred with his great secretary. So we understood, and if it is not true then forty-three senators on this side of the chamber have been misled.

"Every prominent amendment to the bill was as well known to him as to me. While neither the President nor the secretary was in love with all the provisions of these amendments; aye, sir, I may say in fairness that there were many of them to which they were opposed, as the senator from Missouri and the senator from Arkansas and the distinguished chairman of the finance committee were opposed to many of them, and as it was a compromise measure it was not satisfactory to a single, solitary human being on this side of the chamber in all its details, but I assert as a whole the structure as presented and scanned by these gentlemen was satisfactory and was recognized as the best it was possible to pass through this body, and that from no quarter, high or low, neither from the President through his cabinet nor by any member of this body, was it ever suggested or intimated that there was any violation of Democratic principles in anything we did.

"Now, Mr. President, this is a very broad statement. I call upon the two gentlemen who had the immediate control of the bill, the senator from Missouri (Vest) and the senator from Arkansas (Jones), and ask them if they have a statement which varies a hair's breath from the truth; and it is due to the senate, it is due to themselves, it is due to me, it is due to the country, that the truth shall be known. Let the people have the truth. I pause for a reply from my friend from Missouri."

Vest arose. He began by saying that he had not himself seen the President since the repeal of the Sherman law, but with the secretary of the treasury he had frequently conversed. Mr. Carlisle had repeatedly and distinctly stated to him that the greatest possible calamity that could happen would be the failure of any bill. He had distinctly stated to him that no difference in rates should be allowed to stand in the way of the consummation of some change of the tariff. His colleague (Jones) had seen both Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Cleveland. They both declared that the bill was acceptable to them. The bill did not suit him (Vest). He knew it must have the support of the administration to pass, and he asked Mr. Jones if the President would throw the weight of his influence into it. Jones replied that the President had said to him, "I am willing to do anything to pass the bill through congress."

"If we go into this fight the President must be behind us," Vest had said.

Jones replied that he was.

"Thereupon," said Vest, "I gave up my personal opinions and resolved to support it. The President's letter was the first intimation to me that he was against it."

When Vest sat down, Jones, who was in charge of the bill in the senate, took the floor. He was as pale as death. He realized, he said, when the bill came to the senate, that it could not be passed in its form then, and he had gone to work with infinite labor and pains to interview every Democratic senator. He ascertained every objection, and had carefully noted them. He had talked with Carlisle about his plan, and the President indorsed it. Then he (Jones) proposed the amendments in consultation with Carlisle. The secretary was thoroughly informed as to the situation, and he (Jones) had said to him: "I will not go one step further if the administration is not behind me."

"I requested him to explain everything to the President," said Jones. "I saw the President. He told me Carlisle had explained all, and he (Cleveland) said he thought we were doing what was the wise and proper thing. Among the amendments thus prepared were those placing coal and iron on the dutiable list. Until I read Mr. Cleveland's letter to Wilson," said Jones emphatically, "I believed he cordially approved our action. I had expressed to him the opinion that it must be either this modified bill or none at all, and he replied that in the alternative he favored the modified measure."

The testimony of these distinguished Democrats that the President had led them to believe that it was in accord with their efforts to reach a compromise, and that he was at all times aware of the concessions which were being made in order to get the bill through the senate, combines treachery with dictation and gives the Wilson letter the appearance of an attempt of the President to recoup himself at the expense of the senators who believed they were acting under his sanction. If President Cleveland was afforded the unusual opportunity of making his wishes known through his secretary of the treasury and through private conferences with senators, and failed through these to put the seal of his disapproval upon the compromise measure, his action is doubly offensive and discreditable.

The vindictive spirit displayed by the Expositor toward the railroad workmen of Fresno who were out in the late strike, and whose conduct attracted general and favorable attention during that period of turbulence, will utterly fail of the purpose which calls it forth. The large majority of people, whatever their avocation or station in life may be, believe in fair play, and unwarranted hostility towards any class is bound to react in favor of those who are misrepresented and traduced. It is true that the men quit work in obedience to the action of the unions to which they belong, and that action was unwarranted and should not have been taken, but aside from this the conduct of the men in this city calls for warm commendation instead of slurs and abuse. THE REPUBLICAN has condemned the railway strike from the day of its inauguration to the present time, but it has not or cannot find in that any reason for denouncing men whose conduct, under the pressure of prejudice and excitement, made Fresno conspicuous as the most quiet and orderly place in the state. Justice must be done regardless of mistakes and differences of opinions, and justice in this instance demands the commendation of the capable local managers of the road, the striking workmen and the officers, whose actions throughout were marked by vigilance and discretion.

GROVER is again promising the people prosperity in the event that the tariff bill is passed. He promised the same thing if congress would repeal the silver purchase act, but not the slightest benefit was realized when the repeal was an accomplished fact. As a matter of course almost any sort of action on the tariff would be better than eternal tinkering, with all the doubt and uncertainty which that implies; but the only benefit which the country would realize from the passage of the Wilson bill would be relief from the doubt and uncertainty which has prevailed for more than a year. It would be infinitely better if the administration should admit its inability to pass a satisfactory tariff bill, and turn its attention to matters of vital importance which are pressing for solution. The present tariff law needs but slight modification, but the financial legislation of which the President spoke with such apparent earnestness when he was coercing congress to secure the repeal of the silver act, is a matter which demands the immediate and the ablest efforts of the administration. Congress has been fooling with the tariff buzzsaw long enough, and it should gather up the dead, salve the wounds of the disabled and make a final, desperate effort to do something of use to the country.

VISALIA people are organizing for the purpose of encouraging the employment of white people and discouraging the employment of Chinese and Japanese. Every town in the state should have a similar organization, the principle feature of which should be a labor bureau with which contracts can be made, and guarantees given by both parties thereto that the contracts will be carried out. Such a bureau should be established in this city at once.

A CHICAGO man has been fined $25 for laughing boisterously at a Chicago woman who was riding a bicycle with her feet exposed to the public gaze. It served the fellow right, too. A resident of the windy city who has not learned to be decorous in his admiration of the female foot needs a lesson that he can remember.

L. A. Winchell's Long Experience and Many Discoveries.

L. A. Winchell and two or three others will start in a day or two for a prospecting tour toward the headwaters of the San Joaquin. They will make their headquarters at the warm springs at the Blaney meadows, fifty-five miles beyond Pine Ridge.

Mr. Winchell is one of the finest mountaineers in California, and for that matter, it would be a difficult thing to find his superior anywhere. Since he was 10 years old he has gone almost every year into the Sierra Nevadas, and has been the discoverer of many a rare and interesting locality, and has made his way where no other man had ever gone. He was the discoverer of the lake which is a common source of Kings river and the San Joaquin, and which lies in a granite plateau 13,000 feet above the sea, nestled in a basin at the base of Camera peak, and with eternal snow for its banks, the snow being even in midsummer as much as sixty feet deep in places. This lake was afterwards visited and photographed by J. R. Riggs.

Mr. Winchell has also the proud distinction of being the first person who ever reached the summit of Mount Goddard. He succeeded after Whitney had failed. He built a small monument of slate on the highest pinnacle, and it is there to this day.

Mr. Winchell knows every trail of the mountains, and he is never tired of seeking new wonders and new beauties beyond the reach of all trails. He often penetrates into pathless wildernesses of rocks and snow, and is not heard of for days or weeks; but he always comes out enthusiastic and well, and always feels well paid for the time and fatigue. Being well posted in geology and natural history, he finds no limit to the subjects of interest to be met with in those waste places, which to some people would seem nothing but deserts of rocks and drifts of snow.

TWO YEARS OR FOUR

A Question Perplexing to Office Holders.

PREPARATIONS FOR CONTEST

Injunction to Restrain the Clerk from Printing Tickets Is Probable in October.

Preparations, systematic and well planned, have been in progress for some time, the object of which is to have the supreme court pass upon that portion of the county government act which relates to the term of office of the auditor, recorder, clerk, tax collector, sheriff, district attorney, treasurer and surveyor of this county. Every few weeks or months since that law was passed, there have been questions coming up in one shape or another as to the constitutionality of certain parts of it. The part now to be given special consideration is that which relates to the length of the term.

As is well remembered, it was the general understanding when the election was held two years ago that the successful candidates would hold for four years. Sometime afterwards there were decisions on certain questions indirectly bearing on the subject of length of term, from which it was inferred that these officers would hold only two years, and it seems to have rested at that, although no decision directly on that question has been handed down. It is on this that a decision will now be asked, to settle once for all this matter.

Much counselling and planning has been done on it by those most interested. It is not an easy matter to bring it before the court, as no question has yet arisen. Nobody, in a legal way, has ever disputed the right of the officers to hold four years. They are going peacably along, and so far as any action is concerned nothing has been done to dispute their claims to the four years. Of course, three sets of candidates are running for the offices, but the court cannot be called upon to pull these men off until they do something to interfere with the legal rights of those already in the offices.

Not until the county clerk orders the tickets printed can those in office take any legal steps to assert their claims to the four years. Then they can come forward and ask for an injunction restraining the clerk from issuing tickets, and base their action on the claim that there are no vacancies to be filled. This will open the way to a decision directly on the subject, and this is probably the course which will be taken.

Some are of the opinion that one of the opportune times for the injunction was when the supervisors declared that vacancies would occur in these offices named, and calling an election to fill them. But that opportunity passed, and the next, as has been said, will come when the order is made for printing the tickets, which will be some time after the middle of October.

If that occasion is allowed to pass, another will come when the newly elected officers shall attempt to take their places. The present incumbents may refuse to vacate, and this will compel their opponents to bring suit to oust them, and this will call up the question of the length of term.

Most probably it will be the occasion of the order for printing the tickets which will be taken for asking for the injunction.

It is stated that a carefully prepared brief on the case is already in existence. The whole matter has been kept as quiet as could be, but too many people knew of it and it leaked out.

It is too early yet to express any opinion as to how it will terminate, whether those in office will hold on for two years more, or whether those who shall be elected at the coming election will be declared the legal officers. But, one thing is certain: It is going to have a chilling effect upon some of those who are running for these offices. They will not relish the idea that they may be elected all fairly enough, and then have the supreme court say that they were elected to fill a vacancy which did not exist. The uncertainty of being elected is about as much as the average candidate cares to face; and the additional uncertainty of there being any office to fill, even if elected, will be too much.

There are three candidates for each one of the above named offices. Each one has a hope, more or less strong, of being elected. But at the same time, each knows that two must be defeated, and now, that the successful man must fight an expensive contest, will take some of the ecstacy out of politics for the present campaign.

The time required to obtain a decision after the suit is brought is problematical. Suits in nearly the same line have been in court for many months. There is a provision by which, in cases of emergency, a suit can be rushed at once to the supreme court, and a decision can be obtained in a short time. If the present misunderstanding may be considered a matter of sufficient emergency, it is likely a quick answer would be given by the supreme court.

WINTERS CAPTURED.

He Is Traced to the Foothills Above Dry Creek.

Deputy Constable Will Henry today landed Marion Winters in jail. He is the colored citizen wanted on two charges of stealing harness. He was arrested last Monday, and gave bond in the sum of $200 for his appearance. But he seems to have come to the conclusion that absence was the best policy, and he suddenly disappeared.

He had been seen in company with a colored man named Doke, who lives north of Letcher postoffice among the Dry Creek foothills. It was surmised that Winters had fled to that place, and Officer Henry followed, and came down upon him like a wolf on the fold, and brought him back to Fresno. He was held in default of $200 bail, which he was unable to furnish. He will plead to the charge before Recorder Clark at 10 o'clock this morning.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

A San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad Will Pay.

From the San Francisco Report.

It will not be hard to raise money for the competing railroad down the San Joaquin valley once a start is made with a good large subscription to the stock. This point has been discussed by the promoters of the project. A conversation with Traffic Manager Leeds of the Traffic association this morning showed that he had fully considered the financial part of the project.

"The talk of difficulty in placing the bonds for the road is nonsense," he said. "It is a business proposition that a road tapping the same territory as the Southern Pacific, and capitalized and bonded for less than one-half what the Southern Pacific road is capitalized and bonded for, must be a good proposition for investors. If, with 125,000 people in the San Joaquin valley, the Southern Pacific Company can pay interest on its bonds and dividends on its capital stock, it is a plain proposition that another road, costing less than half as much and consequently with less than half so much to pay, must be a profitable investment, especially as the road would double the resources, population and volume of business of the valley, and have a population of 250,000 at least to depend upon.

"I do not think it will be necessary to go to Europe to place the bonds. In my opinion our San Francisco capitalists will be falling over each other to get them, and we won't need to go outside of San Francisco. Why not? It will be a great investment. There is nothing in California to equal it, and these people are now so eager to invest that they are taking Southern Pacific bonds for three times the valuation of the bonded property. There is not today, in the United States anywhere, to be found an investment the equal of this proposition of a road up the San Joaquin valley. It is the prettiest thing I ever saw. Leaving everything else out of the question—dropping the idea of patriotism for California and all that—and looking at this proposition from the simple point of view of dollars and cents, it is the prettiest thing I ever saw."

There has been a steady effort on the part of the Southern Pacific Company ever since the first state railway commission under the new constitution to confuse the public and make them think the passenger business was the main thing in railroading. Mr. Leeds was asked about this.

"The passenger end of the proposition signifies nothing," he replied. "I don't imagine the local passenger business of the Southern Pacific in California is more than 30 per cent of the company's earning's in this state as against the company's local freight business—certainly not so much if we exclude the suburban and ferry business from consideration. People can send for things. They do not have to travel, but everything they buy or have shipped to them or from them must pay freight. The freight business is almost the sole and is the governing factor of all there is in the transportation question. All other departments almost regulate themselves. A man appreciates the money paid out for passenger fares because it is paid directly to the railway, but he fails to appreciate that the freight question enters in a greater or less degree into everything he buys and sells. In every purchase he makes, in each particular item, the question of freight charges comes directly home to him. The question of freight rates enters into the calculation of the producer more than any one else, for the greater part of the passenger travel may be termed travel for pleasure, and this revenue from pleasure is derived by the railway from city people mostly. The producer, on the contrary, has not the time to travel for pleasure. His dealings with the railway consist in his shipments of his crops and his buying at distributing points of the supplies which are shipped to him. On the producer, therefore, almost the entire freight burden falls, and he is the immediate victim of the high freight charges."

Thrown From a Horse.

Will Daulton of Madera had the misfortune to be accidentally thrown from a wild and vicious horse last Sunday up in the hills, quite a distance from home, having the right arm and the side of his head and face severely hurt. It seems that he was attempting to ride an unruly horse, at which he was succeeding admirably when the reins of the bridle gave way and he was left at the mercy of the frantic animal, which soon threw its rider violently to the ground with the above result. He was taken to Madera by his sister, Miss Naomi, and is now resting as easily as could be expected under the circumstances. Will's many friends hope to see him fully recovered in short order.

THE STAY AT HOMES

Fresnoans Who Cheerfully Accept the Inevitable.

IT IS NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL

A Suggested Electric Road to the San Joaquin River—It Would Surely Pay.

Although complaints are rife among the storekeepers of Fresno that everybody has gone to the seaside or the mountains, those who are in a position to know affirm with great emphasis that an unusual proportion of the people of the city are this year spending their vacation at home. More than that, these stay-at-homes are already beginning to find out that life can be made quite enjoyable in Fresno, even during the heated season, if one goes about it the right way.

Hard times and the railroad strike have been responsible for the situation in which many hitherto fairly well-to-do Fresnoans find themselves. Money is as scarce as hen's teeth, and even a modest week at Santa Cruz or Monterey will make a big hole in a $20-goldpiece, while if it is a case of taking the family along, a round $100 has to be irremediably "busted." On the other hand, when once the situation is accepted with good grace, it is found that the man who has a week at his disposal and a $5 gold piece in his pocket can put in a very pleasant time, and for $10 the whole family can enjoy a week's solid fun, with all the comforts of home and no long, weary railroad journey to spoil two days out of the seven.

Of course the mountains are the chief resort, if there is a clear week available. It takes two days to go up to the ridge, but the stage makes the return trip in one day, leaving three clear days amid the brooks, pines and rocky canyons.

But even this trip has the drawback of the long dusty drive, and those who elect to spend the seven days by the river have many points in their favor. From Fresno to the nearest available point on the San Joaquin is little over an hour's drive over a good road. The ideal picnic spot on the San Joaquin, within easy access, is at the Wood's ranch where an island, well shaded by trees and covered with undergrowth, is an ideal retreat. The abundant green sward is available for pasture and for dancing, while there is an abundant supply of good water. It is a regrettable matter that the railroad crosses the San Joaquin at a point fully a mile from Herndon station, and that there is no desirable, well shaded camping ground anywhere within three miles of Herndon depot. Were this otherwise a much larger number of persons would undoubtedly go daily to the river bank, taking the train to and from town morning and evening.

The suggestion has been made that an electric road ten miles in length could not fail to be a remunerative speculation. It would be patronized regularly all through the season from May to October by campers, hunters and picnickers, while a certain amount of travel would be assured all the year round from residents on the southern border of Madera county. The trains on the Southern Pacific railroad calling at Madera, Borden and Herndon are like angels' visits, "few and far between," and practically there is only one train up and one down available during the day.

The citizen of Fresno who wants to put in a day on the San Joaquin pleasantly, and who is addicted to "the contemplative man's recreation," as idealized by old Izaac Walton, need not leave his fishing tackle at home just because the salmon are not running at the time. It is true that the king of fishes is just now heading up the river, fresh and vigorous after his migration to the sea, but there are other fish in the San Joaquin that are worth catching, if they are not of much account in the frying-pan.

"Chumming" is a kind of angling that is little known in this section of the country, though it furnishes great sport, and the waters of the San Joaquin are precisely fitted for it.

To "chum" successfully the only requirements are a flat-bottomed boat or skiff, a rod and reel, with plenty of light line, a gut leader, a small-sized hook on gut, and a cork float set about two feet above the hook. Half a dozen small shot are fixed on the line, the first about six inches above the hook. The latter is baited with a piece of cheese about the size of a Barcelona nut or of the top of the little finger. The boat is all the better for being handled by another person, who pulls it gently along, just holding it under control and suffering it to drift at times under the overhanging trees, and along the edges of the banks wherever there is an eddy. When the angler is ready, a tiny handful of old dry cheese crushed into very small grains, is cast out on the stream, and the line suffered to follow in the wake of the fragments as they are swept down by the current. The longer the line within reasonable limits, the better the chances of success. As the tiny fragments of cheese are swept down, a foot or two below surface, the "chub" or "fall fish" swim toward them, and when the big morsel of cheese, in which the hook is buried, comes out in sight there is an immediate rush for the prize. The chub is a very strong fish, and as light tackle is used there is plenty of fun before the prize is brought to basket. An angler whose boat is rowed gently along, who keeps well out of sight and avoids scaring a hundred fish in catching one, may easily secure more chub in a couple of hours than he can carry home, while he who is ignorant of the secret of "chumming" will sit the whole day long in one place vainly waiting for a nibble.

"Chumming" is a novelty on this coast, and will no doubt become popular wherever it is tried.

The San Joaquin has many spots that invite attention from the sketcher, and as for the camera enthusiast, the river is full of opportunities for pictures full of variety and vigor.

The chaparral cock, or road runner, and the too abundant ground squirrel, will furnish the rifleman with abundant opportunities for trying his skill, and the graceful heron is nowhere so abundant or so thoroughly at home as on the sand bars of the San Joaquin. A taxidermist may kill more brilliantly plumaged birds and more interesting animals in a day on the river than he can stuff in a year.

With an electric road, the joys of a day on the river could be shared by the thousands of Fresnoans to whom a team is a costly luxury and a long tramp from Herndon depot an impossibility. Then, too, the stay-at-home has this great solace. If taken sick friends are near at hand; if funds run out the storekeeper will not scowl at a request for small credit; and the sense of being a stranger and a pilgrim, a social castaway, a piece of flotsam and jetsam, drifted into some hotel where one knows nobody and is welcomed only for one's money, is altogether absent. Taken all in all, the stay-at-home's lot in Fresno is not an unhappy one, if men and women would make the best of hard times, sing a bit, make friends of the children, and cease to say that the heat exasperates them, when it is simply bringing out the natural rassedness in the individual as it brings out the humors in the blood.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS.

They Discuss Women's Rights at Spinney Hall.

A smaller audience than usual responded to the invitation of the Equal Suffrage League for a joint debate at Spinney hall last night. Ben Hill, George St. Louis and a few other Populists were present and took part in the discussion, in which, it is fair to confess, the ladies more than held their own.

The meeting was something of a disappointment to the promoters, because the speakers who were to have taken sides on a specially selected question were not present. The question was to have been, "Is a single standard of morals for men and women desirable?" and the debate would undoubtedly have been both animated and interesting. As it was, the only alternative was an impromptu discussion on some other subject, and "Woman Suffrage" was the topic selected.

Ben Hill, the Populist nominee for sheriff, was delegated to lead the debate in the affirmative, with Mrs. Dr. Anna Schemerhorn and George Lee as assistants. The negative was entrusted to H. N. Cook, with Mrs. Mead and George St. Louis as lieutenants.

Ben Hill opened the debate with the old familiar arguments in favor of granting the suffrage to women, and was followed by Mr. Cook, whose objections were supported chiefly by witty extracts from newspapers. He addressed the president as "Mrs. Chairman," a title which suggested "Mr. Chairwoman" as a possible complication of complications, but Mrs. Schemerhorn smiled and the title went. The lady vacated the chair for a few moments to reply to Mr. Cook, and certainly demonstrated that she could follow a train of logical sequences without digression, the weak point with most women orators. Mrs. Schemerhorn spoke connectedly and ably, though without raising any new issues. Mrs. Mead followed, in opposition to women's rights, a circumstance that was evidently a drawback to her powers, and she frankly admitted that she was "just boiling over on the other side."

George St. Louis made a few remarks, and as George Lee did not come up to time, the discussion closed a full half-hour earlier than was anticipated. It was felt that the matter could hardly be passed on or voted on by the audience under the circumstances, and on motion of Mrs. Hill, consideration was postponed. The subject of the single standard of morals was made the order of business for the next meeting, when W. T. Shelton will be among the speakers.

CAUGHT IN LOS ANGELES.

G. W. Brooking Arrested on a Charge of Embezzlement.

Constable Warren Hill arrived in Fresno yesterday from the south, having in custody G. W. Brooking, whom he arrested in Los Angeles. Brooking is accused by G. A. Everts, the Public Administrator, of embezzling $20.

The officers had been looking for him for some days, and only recently obtained information leading them to believe that he was in Los Angeles. The money alleged to have been embezzled is claimed to belong to an estate, in the settlement of which Mr. Everts is engaged. The trial is set for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

A Dangerous Practice.

About 7:30 last night three teams engaged in a series of races on Mariposa street, from M to R and return. The horses were trotters of the fastest kind, and the way they dashed along was a caution. The "sport" lasted about half an hour, and the parties engaged in it seemed rather to enjoy than otherwise the danger to persons crossing the street. The speed kept up was anywhere from sixteen to twenty miles an hour.

What Knox Has Come To.

From the San Francisco Report.

It is quite natural that Knox should desire the strike to continue. When it has become a thing of the past and all the ex-strikers who can get work are at work again, Mr. Knox will be an individual of small importance—simply a young man on trial for a crime in Woodland, Yolo county.

LAID TO THEIR REST.

Funeral of Mrs. Morford, Miss Morton and Miss Kirkwood.

The last sad rites were held yesterday over the remains of Mrs. Morford, Miss Morton and Miss Kirkwood, who lost their lives Monday evening in the San Joaquin in attempting to save a friend. The funerals were largely attended, friends and relatives coming many miles from all directions.

The funeral of Mrs. Morford and Miss Morton was conducted from the M. E. Church, south, at 11 o'clock yesterday. J. Shuller, J. T. Webster, J. S. McCardle, T. S. Briscoe, A. M. Drew and E. S. Van Meter, acted as ball bearers. The coffins were placed before the altar as the choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

Elder N. C. Christian read the burial service. Rev. Father Yager spoke of the certainty of death and the beauty of the life that is always ready for the great change which must come to all.

An impressive funeral sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. N. Kenney, pastor of the church. The interment took place at the Mountain View cemetery.

Miss Kirkwood's funeral was held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon from the residence of her parents in Belmont addition. She was a member of the Y.P.S.C.E. of the Presbyterian church, and her friends, both young and old, attended her funeral. The funeral sermon was preached by H. C. Shelton, who had been her teacher at the Belmont school, where she graduated this year. Hymns were sung by a choir consisting of Alice Armstrong, Mae and Blanche Pierce, Robert Hall and W. W. Poole. The pallbearers were Elsie Hall, Lillian Poole, Lizzie Carling, Carrie Downer, Laura Beeson and Mary Cook. The interment took place at Mountain View cemetery.

MONKEY AND BEAR.

Two Pets Which Furnish Great Amusement for the Youngsters.

Harry Sherwood, the popular manager of the Fresno flouring mill, is the envied owner of two pets which furnish great amusement to the youngsters on the east side of town. The house is on the northwest corner of M and Tulare streets, and the pets are a monkey and a bear. The monkey, which answers to the name of "Lizzie," belongs to the Mosaque species, the most docile and intelligent of the smaller representatives of the simean family. "Lizzie has a house all to herself at the top of a twenty-foot pole, and is so tame that she is handled with impunity by the children. She is exceedingly sociable in her habits, and moans plaintively if left alone and unnoticed even for a few moments. Unlike most Oriental monkeys, which live but two or three years and are the most sickly of pets, "Lizzie" is lively and healthy, and seems thoroughly acclimated.

The other pet is a black bear, which answers to the name of "Fritz." He was brought here from Oregon, and is so tame that Gardener Lund is accustomed to put his hand in Bruin's mouth with perfect impunity. The monkey and the bear are near neighbors, but "Lizzie" has so far escaped snap judgment from "Fritz."

The Monkey and the Chew of Gum.

A mild mannered man walked up to the cage of an unshaved son of the forest, wearing among his other clothes a prehensile tail and a face as solemn as a Wesleyan deacon of the old fashioned type. The monkey was critically examining a peanut, wondering possibly whether it would be worth opening. The man laid an innocent looking little roll of something on the outer ledge of the cage. Now, a monkey's curiosity is only equaled by his avarice. He will take anything in sight whether he wants it or not. So the ring tailed resident of the cage took this roll in. At first it was not possible to see what he had acquired, but in an instant the mystery was solved.

He placed it once to his mouth and took a generous bite. It proved to be a secondhand piece of chewing gum. As he removed his paw a few onlookers were well nigh thrown into spasms, for the wax strung out in an ever dwindling string, and as it drew away from him the monkey surveyed the string calmly, but curiously. If ever a monkey assumed an expression of heart consuming bliss, it was that monkey. There was just enough sugar in the pasty stuff to make it very palatable to him, and he curled his tail, rolled his eyes upward with an agonizing look and murmured to himself, "This is heaven to me." But the wax under his emphatic treatment began to show signs of rebellion. It got warm and stuck in his paw, and while he was trying to solve the problem there encountered it locked his jaws. Then he began to yawn, and to pray for a toothpick, and to wish for the man who had given him the gum, but that worthy was far away.—Cincinnati Tribune.

Early Use of the Word "Strike."

An early use of the word "strike" occurs in the London Chronicle for 1766. In the September of that year are numerous references to great suspension of labor in the northern coalfield, and the colliers are stated to have "struck out" for a higher bounty before entering into their usual yearly "bond." In confirmation of Mr. Leaton-Blenkinsopp's statement at the last reference it may be added that the strike is twice called a "stick." (London Chronicle, Oct. 8-10.)

One of Harriet Martineau's earliest pamphlets was a tract entitled "The Tendency of Strikes and Sticks to Produce Low Wages," published at Durham in 1834. The time honored illustration of profitless labor, "carrying coals to Newcastle," probably received its first slap in the face during the strike of 1765. A paragraph dated Newcastle, Sept. 28, in the London Chronicle, says, "'Tis very remarkable that on Wednesday several pokes of coals were brought from Durham to this town by one of the common carriers and sold on the sand hill for ninepence a poke, by which he cleared sixpence a poke."—Notes and Queries.

Young Supreme Court Lawyers.

Chief Justice Fuller was speaking the other day of the large number of brilliant young lawyers that were appearing before the supreme court of late. It was formerly the rule to intrust supreme court cases to veterans, and until recently men under 50 years of age were very seldom seen at that bar. Younger men might prepare the briefs, but old men were called in to present them. But of late the younger generation of lawyers are arguing their own cases, and Justice Fuller thinks there are more brilliant youngsters at the bar of the United States than in any other country of the world.—Chicago Record.

Mr. Walter Besant has proposed that a woman's labor bureau shall be started in London, and one of its duties will be to advise how young girls shall be trained to make them most efficient in whatever line they adopt.
